Dear Directors,

I can honestly say, I don't really see one change I like.

I was wondering if you have thought through all of the implications of the sea can issue? No, I do not have one but feel I am going to be affected by that decision.

If you are demanding homes get rid if them, where do you propose the people put the contents? Some contractors have these loaded full of tools, some have family furniture, who knows what else.

All of a sudden Market Place will be loaded with items people want or don't want or now don't have space to keep, but they have to be rid of it all before a most ridiculous fine (may as well sign the house over now) this will lead to inside home hoarding, creating a safety/fire hazard, over flow at the dump, more roadside dumping, and worse, our beautiful forests will have even more garbage dumped.

Please reconsider what you are iron fistng the community with and work with the people. Not against us.

Sincerely,

Julie Cook
